at 1600 on Sunday 13 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning cloudy and cooler into Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Cloud building up from the northwest in the early evening ahead of a band of rain, occasionally heavy, moving south in the early hours of the morning. A warm night, but less humid once the rain has passed. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Monday:
Brighter and drier conditions develop from the north, as a band of cloud and rain retreats southeastwards through the morning. Sunnier, but cooler and breezier conditions follow, with occasional showers. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Largely dry on Tuesday with variable cloud, although marginally cooler. Showers move in overnight and linger throughout, with risk of thunder in the southeast. Showers turning heavier into Thursday.
